

National Institute of Open Schooling
Secondary – Economics
Lesson 20: Sectorial Aspects of Economy
Worksheet -20

1. People have been traditionally practicing occupations like mining and quarrying which involves exploiting natural resources to manufacture goods. List out various such occupations related to the primary sector.
2. Agriculture is the predominant occupation of the primary sector and also has the largest share in national income. Mention different ways in which the primary sector, particularly, agriculture contributes towards economic development of a country.
3. Manufacturing industries provide large scale employment besides other benefits which directly contribute to the country's progress. Discuss various ways in which industrialization helps in the development of the economy.
4. Service sector is extremely important for ensuring opportunities and investments in a country. Explain how growth of the service sector has benefited the country globally.
5. “All three sectors of economy are interlinked and complement each other in one way or the other.” In the light of the above statement, establish the link between the primary, secondary and tertiary sector with the help of examples.
6. Visit a market nearby and make a list of various goods and services available and classify them into primary, secondary and tertiary sector.
7. Employment opportunities have significantly increased due to remarkable growth in secondary and services sector. In the light of the statement, explain with example how employment rates have improved with growth of these sectors.
8. Collect data about the contribution of various sectors of the economy to National Income. Find out which sector tends to make the largest contribution and mention some reasons for this trend.
9. Even after a significant amount of growth in the industrial sector, its contribution to National Income has not registered an expected progress. Suggest some measures which could be adopted for achieving desired progress in the Industrial sector.
10. Primary sectors like agriculture could be benefitted by using modern technologies as compared to traditional methods of agriculture. Elaborate the statement.