

National Institute of Open Schooling
Secondary Course : Business Studies
Lesson 6 : Warehousing
Worksheet - 6

1. Food grains are not produced throughout the year but we need them every day? How do you think farmers are able to supply these items continuously to us?
2. There is a sugar mill in Meerut which produces sugar throughout the year but sugarcane is produced only during certain time of the year and after production sugar needs some time for sale or distribution. How will the need for storage of both raw material as well as finished products be managed?
3. Warehousing is one of the important auxiliaries to trade. Explain the need for warehousing in detail.
4. Warehousing caters to the storage needs of different types of commodities. Describe the various types of warehouses that have come into existence in order to meet the commodities requirement.
5. It is important to keep sufficient stock in the warehouses. Explain.
6. A warehouse makes adequate arrangements to keep the goods in proper conditions. Mention the characteristics of an ideal warehouse.
7. Warehouse protects goods against wind, heat, storm, moisture etc. Now-a-days warehouses perform variety of other functions in addition to these. Describe.
8. Ramesh wants to offer warehousing facility to the business community. What are the things that he must keep in his mind before he starts?
9. Suppose you are offering warehousing facilities for storing apples. What would you keep in mind while offering warehousing facilities?
10. According to you which can be an ideal location for a warehouse?